

there had been woven by the prosecution such an appalling chain of circumstances as seldom fastened on an accused person.

The crowd in the courtroom was the largest that has gathered in the Criminal Court building since Thaw's trial. Men and women struggled for places, gowns were torn and disarranged and hats were crushed in the fight for points of vantage. In this throng were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wolter. The mother sat weeping as she heard Scott make his plea for her son's life, and she recoiled under the denunciation of him by the State's counsel.

Testimony for Wolter closed with his own story. He was cool and collected when he told his story, but he withdrew in terror under the searching cross-examination of Mr. Moss. He regained some of his composure before he finished his ordeal, then made his way weakly to his chair, where he sank limp and pale.

Albert Wolter told to an intently listening jury his story of that fateful day on which youthful Ruth Wheeler came to his apartment on a quest for work and found death by strangulation and burning.

Wolter betrayed no emotion as he calmly stated that he had never written Ruth Wheeler in his life, had not even seen her, and had only written her name in his memorandum book at the request of a Coney Island waiter, Fred Amher, who, he said, wanted to start a German stenographic school.

Ruth Wheeler was killed on Thursday, March 24. Falling to dispose of her body in the fireplace, Wolter cut it apart and left the bust and head wrapped in burial in a fire escape, from where it was pushed into the yard below. He was arrested on Saturday, March 26, and was placed on trial Monday last. He denied ever knowing Ruth Wheeler, but testimony showed that she had been lured to his rooms, expecting to obtain work as a stenographer. There Wolter had attempted to criminally assault her and had murdered her in the struggle, strangling her with a rope tied about her neck.

Before leaving Colonel Roosevelt was shown by General Dalmat a book upon history, written by General Dalmat, the author quoted from one of the former President's speeches, in which he had declared that the nation which which did not reserve warlike habits was doomed one day to fall, and that a strong army was necessary to preserve the nation's destiny.

Colonel Roosevelt was accompanied by the guest of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, whom he met in the United States when the baron was there in connection with the Olympic games.

This afternoon Colonel Roosevelt continued his sightseeing tour, visiting the gallery of the Louvre, and the American embassy at 420 o'clock, when he received a visit from former President Loubet. Subsequently he received the members of the American lobby.

Distress Nerves.

Last Saturday, at the home of Mrs. Durham on Parker street, several women gathered to listen to Miss Minor, who gave a very interesting talk about the work of the District Nurses in Richmond. The matter will soon be presented to the people at large, and it is hoped that all the people will cooperate enthusiastically. Richmond has six district nurses, whose duty it is to visit the sick who cannot afford a special nurse.

These nurses work under the direction of a doctor. They assist in minor operations, nurse fever patients, help with new babies, and give instructions about the care of tubercular patients. The nurse receives no money from the

FIGURES IN TRIAL OF ALBERT WOLTER

WANTED TO END HER LIFE.

Girl Taken in Charge of Associated Charities and Sent to Richmond.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Asheville, N. C., April 22.—A young girl, about sixteen years of age, giving her name as Rosa Williams, claiming Richmond as her home, was prevented from committing suicide last night by Patrolman McConnell and Captain Lytle of the local police force, and turned her over to the Associated Charities of this city. The latter institution sent her to Richmond today.

The young woman complained to the police that she was tired of living the life that she had been living, and that she wanted to reform. She displayed a bottle of bootleggers in jail. Horn and Murphy, it is stated, have been operating for many years in that district, and had on numerous occasions defied the officers. Yesterday two officers went in search of them and found them in the mountains about three miles from St. Paul. It is stated that several shots were fired before she was overpowered. When the officers, with the two prisoners, arrived at St. Paul, it is stated about thirty men, who are said to be confederates of Horn and Murphy, came to their rescue. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the men who are supposed to have participated in the attempted rescue.
